There are a number of breweries in Seattle that have been around and been popular for several years. As a result, it's sometimes easy to forget that some the most popular breweries in Seattle today are actually quite young. One such youngster among us is Stoup Brewing Company in Ballard.

Not quite 4 years old now, Stoup has amassed a loyal following thanks to beers like their extremely popular Citra IPA and their award winning Robust Porter and Russian Imperial Stout. Not content with just a single celebration this year, Stoup has decided to stretch out their 4th Anniversary celebration in to a week full of events.

Here is the full press release from Stoup Brewing Company:
SEATTLE, October 10, 2017 – In honor of their 4-year anniversary at the end of October, Stoup Brewing is excited to announce a week of fun events starting on Monday, October 23rd.

We're taking a different approach this time around." said Stoup's owners. "Rather than one large party, we've planned a series of mini celebrations all week long." We're excited to offer something for everyone," They added.

Stoup's Anniversary schedule is as follows and additional details can be found on their Facebook event page by following this link.
